Service Interruptions Continue due to Tropical Storm Florence

Flooding and Power Outages continue in the Carolinas!

Flash flooding began closing major interstates in North Carolina, including I-40 between I-95 and Wilmington and parts of I-9 on Saturday. As rivers and dams continue to cap, flash flooding is expected to carry into next week. The National Weather Service has also issued a flash flood watch for parts of West Virginia through Monday evening in Greenbrier, Mercer, Monroe and Summers counties.

Major interstate closures and roadways will continue to impact our service and transit times in the Carolinas. We will also monitor any road closures in West Virginia.

We anticipate further delays in to the Carolinas until our customers are able to begin shipping and receiving. Our Atlanta service center is working as quickly as possible to identify areas we are able to service safely and will appoint shipments accordingly.

Weather advisories can be found at the National Weather Service website. For more information regarding Hurricane Florence, visit www.weather.com. Power outages and evacuations: Florence Power Outages Road closures: NCDOT.gov
