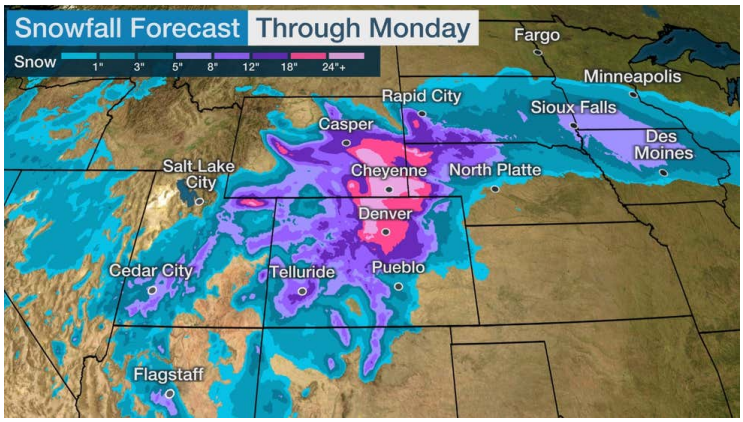
FROZEN FOOD EXPRESS

Photo: Weather.com

Friday, March 12, 2021



A potentially crippling, historic snowstorm will pummel parts of the Rockies and High Plains this weekend with more than two feet of snow in some areas that could snarl travel, damage trees, and knock out power in parts of Colorado, Wyoming, and western Nebraska.

We anticipate this storm will create operational delays on the Denver Service Center. In addition, there will be an adverse impact on our linehaul network in and out of this region over the weekend, with potential transit delays into next week.

As always, FFE appreciates your business and your patience during weather-related disruptions. Stay up to date by subscribing to FFE Auto Email Alert notifications online at www.ffeinc.com or contact your local service center.

Follow us on Social Media to stay connected.

Questions or comments?
ffesales@ffex.net
www.ffeinc.com

CONTACT US